

CRUEL STORM SLAPS STATE

BY LBJ . . .

Rusk's Powers Hiked

Washington (AP) — President Johnson gave Secretary of State Dean Rusk added authority over the overseas activities of U.S. agencies and provided for two high-level groups to help him.

The White House announced this "modernizing and streamlining" foreign affairs reorganization Friday after Johnson explained it at a Cabinet meeting.

The new procedure is aimed at achieving clearer and quicker decision-making over the maze of foreign activities by federal agencies which have multiplied in recent years. It grows out of a study made for Johnson by Maxwell D. Taylor, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and former ambassador to South Viet Nam.

Shift

White House sources said the President, in giving the added duty to Rusk, was placing with the secretary of state some of the responsibility the President has hitherto shuddered as top officer over all federal activities. They said Johnson will retain his control as commander in chief over military affairs abroad.

To help Rusk carry out the additional function there will be:

1. A "senior interdepartmental group" headed by Undersecretary of State George W. Ball, with the power to decide issues coming before this top-level committee.

Other members will be the deputy secretary of defense, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the foreign aid chief, the U.S. Information Agency director and the President's national security affairs adviser.

Appeal

Other federal departments will be present to present their views to this committee if they wish. However, if the committee chairman rules against any proposal, the loser would have to appeal to higher authority—presumably the White House.

2. A similar group of committees, known as the interdepartmental regional groups, will work under the senior group to deal with issues from different geographical areas of the world. These committees will be headed by decision-making assistant secretaries of state who handle matters in those areas.

The assistant secretaries for Europe, Africa, the Far East and so on will be in effect the second-level counterparts of the undersecretary of state on the senior committee when it comes to dealing with matters in their areas.

Membership

The area committee—actually committees, each for a different region—will also have members from foreign affairs-connected agencies like the CIA, the Defense Department, the USIA and the Agency for International Development.

White House sources said: "The new setup does not do away with the need for a national security affairs aide to the President. McGeorge Bundy left this position this week and Johnson has yet to name a successor."

The secretary of state's position in the foreign affairs field remains pre-eminent, and the reorganization does not mean a downgrading of the secretary of defense.

The new senior committee under the undersecretary of state is likely to meet once a week or as often as necessary.

TWAS COLD FRIDAY—BOTH OUTSIDE AND INSIDE

The weather outside Friday may have been frightful, but it wasn't much better inside Lancaster County Courthouse. The heat was on, but the temperature dropped to 60 degrees in portions of the building where the wind seeped

Ground War, Air Raids Pick Up

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP) — Heavy fighting broke out Saturday as U.S. Marines and Vietnamese soldiers battled hundreds of North Vietnamese regulars in coastal Quang Ngai province, 320 miles northeast of Saigon.

The Marines, who reported killing 110 guerrillas in nine hours of fighting Friday, committed a fourth battalion to described as light in the joint operation but the fighting appeared to be the sharpest single action the Marines have fought against North Vietnamese units since last fall.

Government casualties also were listed as light.

Tempo Up

It was only one action as the tempo of the war continued to increase.

A brigade of the 1st U.S. Infantry Division reported two units engaged in heavy fighting with a company-sized force of Viet Cong 20 miles north of Saigon.

They resumed attacks on the Red River railway line from Red China at points from 85 to 120 miles northwest of Hanoi, hitting in the latter case only 40 miles from the Chinese frontier. Some 47 miles apart on U.S. 20. Searchers were unable to set out Friday night due to the severity of the storm.

101-MPH Gust Rocks Broken Bow; 4 Rescued

. DRIFTING DUE IN EAST 2 DEAD

A cruel winter storm battered the Nebraska Panhandle Friday and headed east. It left huge drifts, stranded motorists and cut power in some towns. Helicopters, snowplows, ham radio operators and scores of state, county and city officers fought the effects of the storm.

Four persons reported missing were found safe. But one life was lost Thursday.

And a storm-related traffic accident took a second life. The State Safety Patrol in Grand Island identified the victim as Mrs. Patricia L. Laing, 26, of Litchfield. She was killed when a car driven by her husband, Thomas M. 25, collided with a car driven by Max A. Warrick, 53, of Ravenna, Neb. 2 about six miles east of Ravenna.

Warrick and his wife, Laing and the Laings' 2-year-old son received slight injuries, Trooper Harold Kotschwar said.

Slowed Down

Kotschwar said the Warrick car apparently slowed down because of poor visibility and was struck in the rear by the Laing vehicle.

An Atkinson school teacher, Mrs. Anna Schmidt, about 60, was reported missing. She left Atkinson at 11:30 a.m. to drive to her home at Ainsworth and had not been heard from thereafter. The two towns are 47 miles apart on U.S. 20. Searchers were unable to set out Friday night due to the severity of the storm.

Wind and snow spread throughout the state during the day. Gusts of 98 and 101 miles an hour shook Broken Bow, shattering a plate glass window in a department store. There were no injuries—but neither was there any letup in the winds late Friday. The Police Department said.

Snowplows Arrive

In the extreme northwest part of the Panhandle, snowplows at last were able to get through to the community of Harrison, a town of 448 which had been cut off from the outside world for two days.

The road through a canyon to Harrison was opened late Friday by Highway Department snow crews. With power and telephone lines down, the only contact to the community had been by way of ham radio and railroad telegraph.

Early Friday night, however, ham radio operator Dick Carnahan said the wind had subsided to about 35 miles per hour and the snow was diminishing at Harrison.

An Alliance helicopter pilot, Phil Brown, flew a mercy mission to the cut-off community early Friday to carry medicine to a sick infant. The baby had been running a fever of 103 degrees since early Thursday evening. A Chadron doctor listened to the baby's symptoms over a ham radio and then sent the medicine.

At last report, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Didier was progressing satisfactorily.

A Chadron trucker, Gene

Scholl, who had been missing most of Friday was later found to have taken refuge in a ranchhouse west of Harrison, along with occupants of six other trucks and two cars stalled near the ranch home.

The stalled trucks and cars were sighted by Cloyd Snook who flew along the highway in a light plane. Snook said Bill Brinker, manager of Johnston Fuel Liners for whom Scholl worked, identified Scholl's truck as they flew over the area.

500-Yard Drifts

Snook said the drifts appeared 300 to 50 yards long.

The Cherry County sheriff's office said Friday that three other unidentified missing persons had been located at the Hay Valley Ranch north of Cody. They were found by a county road crew and Deputy Clyde Weber. Valentine was still sustaining "blowin' and snowin'" the wife of Sheriff George Welker said.

Welker and power line technicians were in the storm—trying to restore power to Cody, which was without telephone communications and relying on weak shortwave transmissions for its communication with the world.

Another man, Neil Ballard of Valentine, was found in a barn late Friday afternoon "chilled, but otherwise all right," Welker reported. Ballard had been reported missing about 3 a.m. Friday after he started toward a relative's ranch south of Valentine.

The storm's one known victim so far was Mrs. Elmer Throne, 51, of Rushville, whose frozen body was found in a ditch six miles from Whiteclay Thursday night. She had tried to walk home after her car stalled.

Blowing and drifting snow, with northerly winds of up to 50 m.p.h., were expected in Lincoln and eastern Nebraska Saturday, the Weather Bureau said.

Virtually every point in the state reported either blowing snow, blowing dust or both.

McCook had one wind gust of 75 m.p.h.

Deteriorating weather conditions resulted in the State Patrol sealing off U.S. 385 at Alliance and Chadron police and sheriff's officers halting traffic at the Chadron end of the highways and also preventing traffic from entering U.S. 20 in either direction.

A three-car smashup was blocking traffic in the Hays Springs area.

Scores of travelers were stranded and had to be rescued Thursday night and Friday. All schools in the area were closed Friday, and several businesses didn't open their doors. Bus service and mail deliveries in the stricken area also were cancelled.

Hampered

In central and east Nebraska railroads and busines reported normal operations. But the storm was hampering air-line service.

A Frontier Airlines flight from Lincoln to Kansas City was cancelled in the afternoon and a Denver-Kansas City flight Friday night bypassed the city. In addition, one flight to Omaha and one from Omaha were cancelled, as well as a Lincoln-Kansas City evening flight. United Airlines in Lincoln said its flights were continuing as scheduled.

Continued snow and high winds made driving hazardous in Lincoln. By mid-afternoon city sanding trucks were working on heavily traveled intersections, but many streets remained ice-coated.

Gusts of up to 53 m.p.h. hit Lincoln.

Lincoln police reported 28 motor vehicle accidents Friday, with 10 persons reported injured. Power lines were reported down in at least two spots.

Storm Grips Vast Areas Of 3 States

Fargo, N.D. (AP) — A paralyzing March blizzard held a vast section of three North Central states in its grip for the third day Friday.

The storm, moving slowly northeastward, made a snowy isolated wilderness out of central and eastern North Dakota, and much of northern Minnesota.

More than 20 persons were missing and unaccounted for in the Dakotas and Minnesota, and search parties were turned back in the blinding whiteness. Three deaths in Minnesota were attributed to the storm.

In towns which would be small suburbs by city standards, some office workers spent the nights in hotels, unable to travel, even a few blocks to their homes.

Nearly 500 passengers were trapped for a time in three Northern Pacific transcontinental trains.

About 190 passengers remained in the eastbound North Coast Limited, snowbound near Glen Ullin, N.D. The westbound North Coast Limited, with 170 passengers, was pulled back to Jamestown, N.D., where passengers remained on the train. The eastbound Mainstreeter was brought into the New Salem, N.D., depot and its 135 passengers were housed in city hall.

Three Fort Yates, N.D., high school basketball coaches have been missing since Wednesday night.

Homes and business buildings in Sterling Corners, a tiny central North Dakota town, were jammed with 120 marooned travelers the past two nights.

The cafe has "enough food to last us quite awhile," said Mrs. Albert Wolt, whose son operates it. "If it runs out, there are cattle and hogs on those trucks out there. If we get into a pinch, we know what to do."

Snowfall late Friday ranged up to 2½ feet in the Black Hills of South Dakota. Most observers described the blizzard as the worst in memory.

An area populated by nearly two million persons, stretching nearly 1,000 miles from the Black Hills to Duluth, was affected.

Youth Reached

It took an ambulance several hours to battle through eight miles of snow-drifted roads in northeastern South Dakota in an effort to reach a youth who accidentally shot himself in the stomach.

A rancher Leo Aberle delivered his wife's 13th baby at their blizzard-bound home near Glencross, S.D. "I don't want to do it again," Aberle said, in reporting that his newest son and wife are doing fine.

High Growth Rate

Earlier this year, the Anti-Defamation League of the B'nai B'rith estimated that a combined John Birch Society membership in Nebraska and Kansas had increased by 800 persons since November 1964.

The growth rate, it was said, was fourth nationally to Missouri, New Jersey and California.

STUDEBAKER ENDS AUTO-BUILDING ERA

Detroit (AP) — Studebaker, one of the grand old names of motoring, ended its auto building operations Friday in the face of steadily declining car sales.

Rex A. Burlingame, president of Studebaker Corp., announced that the firm, which had been building autos since 1902, had tossed in the sponge for its Canadian-based automotive division.

"While I sincerely regret the necessity of discontinuing Studebaker cars, the irreversible losses being incurred permit no other course," he said.

Slide From 1950

Studebaker's automotive fortunes had gone steadily downhill from the golden days of 1950 when it sold a company high of 268,229 cars.

In December 1963, the firm made a major move in an effort to save its automotive division as it transferred the car building setup from South Bend, Ind., to Hamilton, Ont.

Sales slipped to about 19,000 of those sold in the United States, but the volume was not enough to enable the Studebaker Auto Division to be near the break-even point.

Rumors had been persistent in recent weeks that some major changes were likely in Studebaker, all of whose non-automotive divisions reportedly have been making money.

Studebaker officials issued several statements in recent weeks denying that they had any plans to merge with Allied Products of Chicago.

64 Die In Canadian Jet Crash In Tokyo

Tokyo (AP) — A Canadian Pacific jetliner groping for a landing in fog hit the approach lights at Tokyo's international airport Friday night and smashed up in flames, killing 64 persons.

Eight persons, one an American, were known to have survived.

Seven Americans may have perished but casualty lists both at the airport and at the airlines office in Vancouver, B.C., were incomplete.

Canadian Pacific officials said the four-engine DC8 carried 62 passengers, nine crew members and an off-duty stewardess. They were among those killed.

Ripping out 15 landing lights in Tokyo Bay on the approach to the runway, the DC8 hit a breakwater wall at the edge of the runway and then tore down the runway scattering wreckage for nearly a mile before coming to a halt.

ABC Official

Aboard the four-engine craft and presumed killed were Jesse Zousmer, a vice president of the American Broadcasting Co., and his wife. He was on his way home from Hong Kong, origin of the ill-fated flight.

Rescue squads worked in fog and rain pulling mangled and charred bodies from the twisted and smoldering wreckage of what once was a $6 million airliner. Searchlights pierced the early morning darkness.

Japanese authorities launched an inquiry into the disaster, the second to strike at the airport in a month. On Feb. 4, a Japanese Boeing 727 jet crashed into Tokyo Bay while trying to land, and 133 persons were killed. That was the world's worst single plane disaster.

Zousmer, director of ABC-TV News, had completed a month-long tour of ABC bureaus in the Far East. In Saigon, he had discussed increased coverage of the Vietnamese war.

A veteran journalist of 30 years experience, Zousmer joined ABC in 1963 after working for CBS News. With CBS, he had been editor of the late Edward R. Murrow's nightly radio news program and co-producer of Murrow's "Person-to-Person" TV show.

Washington (AP) — Two Senate Democrats proposed Friday that Congress declare its independence of President Johnson's course in South Viet Nam — and both moves apparently were quashed.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, who sponsored one, conceded as much, although his Senate Foreign Relations Committee put off until Monday a formal decision.

Fulbright said as he "sensed the mood of the committee," neither measure, sought as amendments to a $15-million emergency foreign aid bill, is likely to be adopted.

The new policy maneuvers by Fulbright and Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota came four days after the Senate refused, 92 to 5, to rescind a 1964 resolution supporting the use of American forces against the communists in South Viet Nam.

Meanwhile, the Senate went to work on President Johnson's $6-billion tax bill. Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., called it "the only responsible way to meet the expenses of Viet Nam."

Long, assistant Democratic leader and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Congress could not cut civilian spending enough to pay the costs of war. He said President Johnson already has pared the budget to essential minimums.

"I think that unless we cut back on some of these great society programs," countered Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., "we are going to have a tax increase that will shock many people."

Allen, of Tucson, Ariz., and Griffith, of Flourtown, Pa., volunteered to submit to the experiment after doctors told each he did not have long to live. Both are afflicted with a deadly form of cancer known as osteogenic sarcoma.

Nadler said it would be 10 or 12 days before it could be determined whether each patient would develop a resistance against the other's foreign cancer cells. Cancer has spread in the bodies of Allen, who has lost a left leg to the disease, and Griffith, whose left collarbone was removed by surgery.

The next step, to begin in about two weeks, will involve transfusions of each other's white blood cells. Doctors hope this will build a resistance to cancer.

The transfusions will continue for several weeks. By then, doctors said, they might know whether the treatment had any effect.

Another Succeeded

Nadler said that in a similar experiment with a skin-cancer victim, the treatment was successful.

Allen, father of three, had been given two to six months to live. Griffith had been told he had only a short time.

Nadler, associate chief cancer research surgeon at the state's cancer-research and treatment center, agreed to operate on the men after it was determined they were medically compatible.

U.S. Asks DuBois Club Register As Red Front

Washington (AP) — The Justice Department moved Friday to require the W. E. DuBois Clubs of America — which it described as a Marxist youth organization — to register as a communist-front organization.

In a petition to the Subversive Activities Control Board, Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach said the clubs were created and controlled by the U.S. Communist Party.

A number of their officers, he said, are party members and "subject to its discipline."

The board now will hold hearings to determine whether the organization is a communist front.

If the board so finds, the organization will be required to list its officers and the sources and distribution of its funds. Listing is required also for all printing equipment, including presses and duplicating machines.

Katzenbach said the DuBois Clubs group, with headquarters at 954 McAllister St., San Francisco, claims a membership of about 2,500 with the most active of its 36 chapters in New York, Wisconsin, California and Illinois.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has said the clubs were involved in anti-Viet Nam demonstrations across the nation last fall.

Historically, Americans have the freedom to organize in dissent," Katzenbach said. "At the same time, in accordance with the law, young people who might consider joining this organization are entitled to know its nature and sponsorship."

Denial

In San Francisco, the club's counsel, Patrick Hallinan, denying the organization is a Red front, said, "Katzenbach can put his registration in his ear. The position of the attorney general's office is part and parcel of the policies of the Johnson administration to suppress and silence critics of the administration's dirty little war in Viet Nam—and it's not surprising."

Hallinan's brother, Terrence, is DuBois national secretary.

U.S. Recognizes Ghana Junta

From Press Reports

Washington (AP) — The United States is recognizing the National Liberation Council regime which overthrew the government of Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah, the State Department disclosed Friday.

He said Nkrumah, ousted from Ghana by a military coup Feb. 24, had been entrusted "with the leadership of the government and Democratic Party of Guinea." But in answer to a direct question on whether Toure continues to be president of Guinea, Diallo said, "Yes."

Nkrumah has been made "honorary president" of Guinea but his old friend Sekou Toure still holds the reigns of power, a Guinean diplomat said Friday in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.

In Accra, Ghana's new government charged Friday its ambassador to Guinea and his entire staff were under armed arrest and announced a break in diplomatic relations with Guinea. The government of Guinea President Toure.

Gen. Joseph Ankrah, head of the anticommunist military regime which ousted Nkrumah, Feb. 24 also scoffed at reports from Guinea that Nkrumah, with Toure's backing, now claimed to be president of both Guinea and Ghana.

Toure announced Thursday he was making his old friend and fellow Marxist Nkrumah head of state of Guinea and under terms of an old treaty president of both Guinea and Ghana.

A note sent to Guinea by the Ankrah government Friday said such a treaty no longer exists. "It was dissolved long ago," the statement said.

The defense, in an attempt to raise a reasonable doubt that Powers was the killer, advanced Weissel as a hypothetical suspect.

The prosecution described Weissel as a "red herring" and said the defense was using one of the oldest of techniques—"placing everybody on trial but the defendants."

Art Picked For Elementary Show

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Cards flashing "in" or "out" Friday determined the fate of some 2,000 pieces of grade school art submitted for the 19th annual All-State Elementary School Art Exhibition.

A panel of three judges, all University of Nebraska professors, took on the day-long task of evaluating entries and selecting an exhibit of approximately 400 pieces for display at Miller & Paine auditorium April 2-9.

After the Lincoln showing the exhibit will be divided into two travelling displays. One will tour the state during 1966-67, and the other will be sent to Puerto Rico for a special showing in exchange for a Puerto Rican travelling exhibit here.

The University Extension Division has in previous years received as many as 4,000 entries, explained Gene Harding, coordinator of informal education.

Favorite youthful themes of dinosaurs, witches, monsters and even batman cropped up often in the two-dimensional pictures ranging in media from pencil, pen and ink, charcoal, crayons, water paints, oil paints and print techniques.

While several pieces were receiving unanimous approval, the elementary

Even though a few of the art titles were somewhat deceiving, other were quite helpful to the judges who alternatively laughed, frowned, commented, shook their heads or just stared at the 2,000 potential exhibits.

'WHITE CAULDRON OF SNOW'—

Weather Bureau Report Turns Literary

Friday's storm (who'll be the first to call it the "Blizzard of '66"?") inspired the writers of official Weather Bureau reports to new literary heights.

The U.S. Weather Bureau teletype report is usually a dull affair, shot through with nearly incomprehensible abbreviations—and totally deadpan and straight-faced.

Friday was different. For example, at 7:52 p.m. the wire clacked out this message: "winds . . . have created a white cauldron of snow."

That was in the Dakotas, where, the Weather Bureau said, drifts were "so deep that measurement in the blinding conditions is nearly impossible."

The drifts were described as "mountainous" and the storm as "one of the most savage" ever to "howl across the northern prairies."

The weather "is on a rampage," the wire said. In the South thunderstorms were "rumbling across" the southeastern states.

"Dust storms have spread a pall of blown dust across the Deep South," waxed the literati of the meteorological world.

There may be a reason for this sudden outburst of gilded writing. The weathermen are working pretty hard. Let them tell it:

"The weatherman has probably had it as hard as anyone. Weather Bureau personnel have stood by their posts for 28 continuous hours at Bismarck (N.D.) . . . and were relieved only when another man walked to the airport through the blinding blizzard. Weather Bureau personnel at Fargo will be working through their second consecutive night with no relief."

During those long nights, Mr. Weatherman, how about dreaming up a new standard of measurement for hailstones? Spring will soon be here and this year why don't we say something besides "hail the size of golfballs . . . ?"

Ag Prices Up 8 Points

The mid-February all farm commodity price index stood at 311, eight points higher than in mid-January and 65 points above a year ago, according to the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics.

Higher prices for most livestock and some crops contributed to the increase.

Highest Since '52—The index was the highest since September, 1952, when it was also 311.

In mid-February, Nebraska farmers were receiving $1.40 per bushel for wheat, unchanged from a month earlier and a year ago. Corn was bringing $1.19 per bushel, up three cents from a month earlier but one cent less than a year ago. Oats gained one cent during the month and averaged 67 cents per bushel compared to 71 cents a year ago.

Lyons Facing Charges In 3 Auto Deaths

Beatrice (UPI) — Motor vehicle homicide charges were filed Friday in County Court here against a young Beatrice man in connection with three auto fatalities.

Charged was Milo E. Lyons, 24, who is in a Beatrice hospital with injuries suffered in the accident. He was the driver of one of two cars involved.

Gage County Atty. Arnold Wulschleger filed the charges after a coroner's jury determined the deaths were the result of a "felonious act" by Lyons.

Killed in the accident were Harry Counts, 68, John Cook, 75, and Lyons' sister-in-law, Mrs. Frank Lyons, 29. All were from Beatrice.

The maximum penalty for conviction on motor vehicle homicide is $500 fine, 10 years in prison, or both.

Hong Kong Tea

Hong Kong (UPI) — Princess Margaret had tea with a taxi driver and his family while her husband, Lord Snowdown, chatted with another family across the hall in a Hong Kong housing development.

Douglas Court Clerk Denies Johnson's Claim Of Shortage

Omaha (UPI) — "As far as I'm concerned there is no shortage, never has been a shortage and never will be one as long as I head this office," Douglas County District Court Clerk Sidney Gottneid said Friday.

That was the 77-year-old Gottneid's reaction to an investigation launched by State Auditor Ray C. Johnson into the accounting of filing fees due from attorneys.

"Mr. Johnson had no business making that premature statement until he completed his audit," Gottneid said. "I received nothing but commendations in the 16 years I have headed this office. Now that I'm retiring this type of thing comes up. I'm wondering if there isn't some politics involved. This is the first time Mr. Johnson has run for a four-year term."

Gottneid indicated as early as January, 1964, that he would not seek re-election to the office in 1966. He has been in court work since 1912.

Bernice Wahpekeche, 22, who lived at the same address as the driver and was a passenger in the car, had a leg injury.

Lois Kroll suffered a fracture of the right leg and scalp cuts.

Lexington Firm Has Lowest Bid On State Project

A Lexington construction firm was apparent low bidder at $82,774 for the State Highway Department's new maintenance shop and storage building at Lexington, a department spokesman reported Friday.

Britton Construction Co. submitted the low bid. A second bid of $90,000 was received from Wayne Dowhower Construction Co. of North Platte.

Summary of Conditions

An intense winter storm which moved out of the state Saturday night. Wind gusts caused hazardous conditions in Nebraska. It is expected to weaken Saturday, however, when northwesterly winds will prevail.

14-Ounce Baby Said Doing Well

Denver (UPI) — An 11-day-old premature baby from Imperial, Neb., Scott William Raile, was reported doing well Friday in the newborn intensive care center at Children's Hospital here.

The 14-ounce baby was flown to Denver late Thursday.

A hospital spokesman said: "The baby may have problems in the future, but at the moment is doing well."

The child was born three months prematurely.

Woman, 51, Froze After Car Stalled

... During Storm

Rushville (UPI) — Sheridan County Sheriff Les Jensen said a woman froze Thursday evening after her car stalled in a near blizzard and she attempted to walk to the nearest town.

Jensen said the woman was Mrs. Elmer Throne, 51, Rushville, a clerk at the Randy Thies Grocery and Clothing Store at Whiteclay.

She left Whiteclay about 5 p.m., driving south on Nebraska 87 toward Rushville, some 20 miles away.

Jensen said the car stalled in snow about six miles south of Whiteclay.

The sheriff said Thies began searching for Mrs. Throne after she failed to notify him she had reached home safely, as agreed. He found her body about 11:30 p.m. in a ditch along the highway.

Survivors include her husband and family.

Paine In Hospital After Mild Attack

Grand Island (UPI) — State Sen. Ira E. Paine was in good condition at St. Francis Hospital here Friday following a mild heart attack suffered earlier in the week.

Dr. L. M. Adams, Paine's physician, said the lawmaker was recovering in good shape. He said Paine may be hospitalized another two weeks.

Paine, 72, Grand Island, suffered the attack while working in his yard. He is a one-term senator.

Curtis-Morrison Race Ordered By LBJ, Claims Hummel

Beatrice (UPI) — State Young Republican Chairman Lowell Hummel of Fairbury Friday described the prospective Curtis-Morrison senatorial clash as "a confrontation that was ordered by the President himself, a contest of people versus power."

The remarks, referring to Democratic Gov. Frank Morrison's challenge of Republican Sen. Carl T. Curtis, were contained in a speech at the state convention of the Nebraska Federation of Young Republicans.

The convention opened Friday and continues through Sunday, with elections scheduled Sunday morning.

Urging the re-election of Sen. Curtis, Hummel said the senatorial campaign "has the familiar ring of promising everything for Nebraska, including the moon, based on a deceiving concept of bipartisanship."

Human greed as a major effective motivator than the desire for distributive justice for all."

There was a time, Hummel noted, "when politicians campaigned on the slogan that government must be the servant of the people, performing only such tasks as could not and should not be performed by the people themselves."

Hummel said Cullinan "clear-

Charter Deserves Its Day

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It is commendable to see the City Council taking a second look at certain proposed revisions of the city charter with an eye toward their submission to a public vote in May. Revisions proposed are the work of a Charter Revision Committee which spent many hours in research and discussion. No proposed revisions were submitted without careful consideration and a majority committee vote.

Recently, the council and mayor have given the impression that the proposals are not too important and that there should not be too much tinkering with the charter simply as a matter of principle.

If the impression is correct, it should be changed. This week's action in the matter serves as a good case in point. The council has been, at best, only lukewarm toward four proposed changes that the revision committee considers as most important. In the end, what is submitted to voters will be a matter of judgment on the part of the council but this point should be reached with careful thought.

Two current questions are particularly important. One provides for elimination of any ceiling on city tax appropriations. The other establishes a stronger code of ethics for city officials. It is difficult to see how the City Council can refuse to place these two matters on the ballot.

The current appropriations ceiling places the city at the mercy of outside forces. If the state eliminated the intangible tax, for instance, the city would have a much smaller tax base on which to calculate the limit of funds it could raise by taxation. This is a risk that the city should not have to take.

Not all citizens would prefer to eliminate the tax limit under which the city operates but it is the intelligent thing to. In the past, the city has never appropriated funds in such an amount as it was permitted to do under its limit. In other words, the city has always stayed well below the limit of appropriations it could make. It has done this because it has taken a frugal position on matters of taxation, not because of any limit. There is nothing to suggest that the city would go hog-wild if its tax levy limit were eliminated. On the other side, there is a very good possibility that the levy limit could be so upset by state actions as to render the city incapable of operating. This latter is a senseless threat with which we should not want to live.

Our National Sovereignty

It is an unexpected proposal that has come from the Republican ranks in regard to U.S. foreign policy. A GOP congressional group has suggested that this nation explore a "federal union" with its NATO allies and the idea was endorsed by other leading party spokesmen.

The idea smacks of the one world concepts that have been advanced in the past by hard left-wing groups in our political structure. It is not, however, a total one world concept and represents an effort by the GOP that is most commendable.

It is far too early to state for a certainty that such a move is one we would want to make. Nor do we know that our allies would be particularly receptive to it. By the time its details might be made palatable to all, it could be accepted by none.

This March Storm

A mild January and February coupled with early spring temperatures for March thus far had pretty well convinced us that the 1966 winter was a thing of the past.

Then the storm hit. And we are back into winter.

The upper Midwest took it on the chin. Upper Nebraska, the Dakotas and Minnesota suffered heavily. Sections of northern Nebraska lost their electric power. The roads were blocked. Rivers which had lost their ice began freezing over again.

In southeast Nebraska it was not that severe. For a time it even looked as though the storm would pass us by. But it was bad enough that we put away the seed catalogs. Interest arose again in Florida and the warm Southwest.

But we should all be reminded that it is March. And you can get anything in March

Editorial Of The Day

The Guyana Boundary

From The Washington Post

Border and territorial disputes tend to be composed of nine parts emotion and one part legality and logic. For this reason it is the more impressive that Venezuela, Britain and British Guiana have agreed to defuse their South American border disagreement by referring it to a mixed commission for settlement, with residual recourse to the United Nations after four years if necessary.

Liquor License Limit Upheld

The Nebraska Supreme Court ruled valid Friday the 1963 law prohibiting the holding of more than two retail liquor licenses by any one person or company.

While conceding that one section of the law is "vague, indefinite and uncertain," the high court declared that the law is nevertheless enforceable and a proper exercise of legislative authority.

"In the case before us the Legislature has broad powers in the regulation and control of the liquor traffic," the court said in a ruling written by Judge Edward F. Carter. "In regulating and controlling the sale and dispensing of all alcoholic liquors it is dealing with a business believed to have a tendency to produce pauperism, vice, misery and crime."

The right to sell liquor is

NASON ON EDUCATION:

Easy, Early Success Can Cause Problems

By DR. LESLIE J. NASON

Dear Dr. Nason:

Until this year, our 11-year-old daughter was an all-A and B student. She just brought her report card home and was brokenhearted to receive a D in Social Studies. In all other subjects, she had C's, except for a B in spelling.

She is now in the sixth grade. Until now, her work has come very easy for her without exerting too much effort, but this year her interest in doing a good job is not as sharp as in the past. I'm afraid she will be discouraged if she has to put forth the effort necessary to do the A and B work.

Is there any information that would be helpful to us in helping her to find stimulation in her work?

A.W.L., Atlanta, Ga.

Answer:

The fact that your daughter was able for several years to succeed well with little effort is now her downfall. She fell into a rut. She needs more than encouragement to work hard. She needs to adopt a new approach to each of her subjects.

Encourage her to search for better ways to study and learn. She should talk her study schemes over with her teacher, school counselor and her more successful schoolmates.

Sometimes a student who takes the time to think over the way in which he is trying to learn a subject leads him into improved study techniques without help from anyone else.

Dear Dr. Nason:

My high school son is maintaining a little above a "C" average. Are there colleges that a ccept "C" students. Should my son give up the idea of college because of his grades?

Mrs. W., Rockville, Md.

Answer:

Yes, there are colleges that accept C students.

Usually, a high school senior must have a minimum cumulative average of "C" to be recommended for college. However, this does not mean that every student with a C average, or should be, automatically recommended for college. There are many factors to be considered in addition to grades.

If your son is interested in going to college, he would do well not only to become aware of these factors but also to make every effort to have his last high school grades show improvement in scholarship.

Both you and your son should discuss these problems with his guidance counselor.

Dear Dr. Nason:

Some time ago you answered a question regarding the slow and laboring quality of a fifth-grade boy's handwriting. The question seemed to suggest that the boy had been involved in cursive writing from first grade. Is my assumption wrong?

I'm doing a paper on the advantages of manuscript over cursive writing for the elementary grades and would appreciate any information you can give me on how writing is taught in the California public schools.

N.E., Highland Park, N.J.

Entrepreneur Bemoans Lack Of Education

By ROBERT PETERSON

Q. "My husband didn't go beyond the 6th grade, but he managed to create a prosperous machine tool company. He's 56 and makes a fine income. Yet a day seldom passes but that he bemoans his lack of formal education. What can be done?"

A. Encourage him to get the formal education he wants. Start by getting him to take a home study course that will permit him to take a high school equivalency exam. He can probably qualify for his diploma in a few months of evening cramming. Then he'll be eligible to enroll in evening courses for part-time courses at a nearby college. He may also be able to take time off and attend summer classes. Since he has incentive and apparent ability, he'll probably delight in these courses and may surprise you and himself by having a college degree at 60.

Q. "I'm a used car salesman with flying as my hobby. It's my dream to retire at 60, get license to permit me to take passengers, and offer helicopter rides on a field I own near the local amusement park. Ever hear of an old-timer doing this?"

A. No, but it sounds promising. Helicoptering is a yet-to-be-experienced thrill for 90% of the population, and should have strong appeal to crowds seeking airborne thrills after earthbound adventures on the ferris wheel and roller coasters.

Q. "Until I retired I never noticed trees. But two years ago something clicked and for the first time I saw what a marvelous and incredible thing a tree really is. I've absorbed everything I can find on trees, have a set of slides and have developed a talk on the subject which is in big demand before women's clubs. Please urge others to discover that Kilmer was right."

A. Sure will. Retirement gives us the time to discover Nature's superb handiwork, not only in trees but in rocks, soil, birds, flowers and stars.

Q. "Since I retired 14 years ago we've spent our winters in Florida, springs

Q. "I'm interested in moving to a large retirement colony where there will be so many folks around I'll be sure and find congenial friends. What's the largest such colony?"

A. The largest retirement colony in the world is Leisure World, Laguna Hills, Calif. It's a self-contained community with its own hospital and cooperative apartments, serving more than 30,000 residents past 52 years of age.

If you would like a list of "Low Cost Retirement Hotels," write to Robert Peterson, "Life Begins at Forty," 1110-1112 P Street, Washington 25, D.C. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents to cover handling costs.

NU Requests Win Commission Okay

Priority For Federal Funds

The Nebraska Higher Education Facilities Commission recommended Friday that three University of Nebraska projects be given top priority for federal funds available for the current year.

Of five federal aid applications submitted for the $3,670,167 allocated to Nebraska, only Creighton University's request totaling $1,434,033 for a general science building was not satisfied.

The commission voted 4-1 in recommending allocations of $714,033 for a new women's physical education building, $1,302,585 for a new chemistry building and $791,609 for a new classroom-faculty office building, all to be constructed on the University of Nebraska's downtown campus.

The commission also recommended allocation of $16,220 for a general science building at St. Mary College and $845,660 for the Creighton science building project. Both are Omaha institutions.

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare will make the final determination in the allocation of funds, which are available under the 1963 Higher Education Facilities Act.

Only Commission member John J. Powers, an Omaha attorney, voted against the allocation recommendations, contending the Creighton project should be given a higher priority.

The U.S. Office of Education announced Thursday it had approved a $1,869,000 loan to Creighton University to help finance construction of the science building, a seven-story structure estimated to cost $4.3 million.

King Sued By Owner Of Slum He Occupied

Chicago (UPI) — The owner of a slum apartment taken over by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. filed suit Friday to prevent King from collecting the rent.

King, to dramatize his campaign against Chicago slums, announced Feb. 23 he had assumed "trusteeship" of a six-story structure on the West Side.

He acted without consent of the landlord or courts and termed his action "supralegal." He told newsmen he planned to collect the rent and use the money to renovate the building.

Illegal Seizure
The takeover drew no immediate objection from the owner, John B. Bender, 81 and ill. But Friday Bender's attorney, Fred Raskin, petitioned Circuit Court to end "this illegal seizure of property."

"Although we agree with the intentions and objectives of Mr. King's action," Raskin said, "we believe it can be accomplished under the jurisdiction of the court."

The Cooperating Council of Community Organizations, a Chicago civil rights federation, and the West Side Federation, a neighborhood improvement group, joined Dr. King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference in taking control of the building.

Welfare Noncooperative
They estimated that rents from the five occupied flats would amount to $400 a month. But the Cook County

Federal Judge Lenient With Card Burner

New York (UPI) — Federal Court Judge Edward Weinfeld Friday gave admitted draft card burner James E. Wilson, 21, a two-year suspended sentence for willfully breaking the new draft card law.

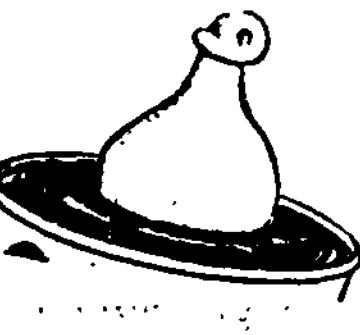

Wilson, a humanitarian, could have received a five-year jail sentence and a fine of $10,000 under the terms of a statute making it a federal offense to knowingly destroy a Selective Service card.

"I take your sincerity and dedication and these good deeds into account," Weinfeld told Wilson. "This is one instance where bread cast upon the waters returns to your account."

At the time of the card-burning, Wilson explained that he had sincere religious convictions that all war and violence were unjustified. He described the Selective Service law as unjust and said, "This is why I broke it."

The judge warned Wilson that the nation would be reduced to anarchy if each citizen obeyed only the laws of their choice.

Bridal Showers

A prenuptial courtesy which has been planned for Sunday, March 20, must definitely be classed in the "different" category, not just because it will honor two brides-elect, but because the two honorees happen to be twin sisters.

The brides-to-be who will be honored are Miss Joan Ideen, who has chosen an April wedding date for her marriage to Clair Larsen, and her twin sister, Miss Joyce Ideen, who will become the bride of Gary Amen in June.

The party will be held at the home of Mrs. Florence Olson in Wahoo, and the co-hostess will be Mrs. Carl Mortensen of Omaha. The guests have been invited for an informal afternoon, during which a miscellaneous shower will be presented to the sisters, who are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Ideen.

An April bride-to-be who will be honored on Sunday afternoon is Miss Sandra Kay Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David A. Johnson, whose marriage to John D. Schneider will be solemnized on Saturday, April 9.

In courtesy to Miss Johnson, her mother and her sister, Mrs. Kenneth Lahm, will be hostesses at a party to be held in the parlors of the American Lutheran Church. Approximately 50 guests have been invited.

Planning a wedding in late April is Miss Karen Torring of Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Torring of Ruskin, who will become the bride of Donald G. Svoboda on Saturday, April 23.

Entertaining in courtesy to the bride-elect on Tuesday, March 29, will be Mrs. Roger Mazour and Miss Judy Sykes who will be co-hostesses at the home of Mrs. Mazour. A personal shower will be presented to the honoree.

THE WIVES of men in Vietnam are proud

By BETTY JAMES

Smiles, brownies and a gathering around the coffee urn are infallible indications of an enjoyable evening among friends. The Vietnam Wives Club meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert Steele last Tuesday evening varied little in outward form from the usual sociable atmosphere of a neighborhood coffee. Yet watching this light, gay conversation, it was awesome to realize how closely these 20 women live with the very core of international turmoil.

Through the pictures and letters from their husbands they have developed a real awareness of the Vietnam situation that the public never could imagine or surmise accurately from news media reports; for our society remains relatively unaffected by the war. There is no rationing; no full scale war effort; just some fighting here, skirmishes there, somewhere across the world. It just doesn't change the American way of life—unless the other half of your life is carrying a gun in that jungle.

The letters these soldiers write home convey a real pride to be fighting alongside the Vietnamese forces, and a belief that the United States belongs in this war. One man explains that "their (the Vietnamese) ideas may be different, but they are fighting just as hard as we are for freedom." Another soldier writes "Don't let anyone tell you that we don't belong here; we're needed and wanted. If we weren't fighting here, now, we'd be fighting at home next."

The men also reflect that this isn't only a war with guns, but a war with people and their political persuasions. Their person-to-person good will is the only way to penetrate the fear and respect that Viet Cong terrorists instill in the Vietnamese villagers. The first thing one soldier requested from home was a third grade level history book and a map of the United States, to give the natives some conception of what Americans are and what they are doing there.

Another man is supporting a Viet boy in school with $5 a month for room and board. When the boy wanted religious instruction, he located a chaplain for him. A third husband has spent the last 3 months attempting to wade through the red tape involved in adopting an 8-month-old Vietnamese war orphan.

So far, these are the type of things the American public hears, and justly so. But there is too much of which we aren't aware.

We don't realize that this war has become one fought with sheer American guts and applied know-how. Many of our troops are existing under shortages of soap, uniforms, guns, socks and in some cases food. One woman jokingly related that her husband made a wringer washing machine. "At home he never even put the clothes in the washer, and if he did he'd yell 'which button do I push?'"

Another wife airmailed her husband a washing machine motor so that he might make a cement mixer out of barrels. The cement was needed to make slabs that would raise their tents off the wet ground.

Even more surprising is the public's lack of information concerning actual warfare. One husband warned his wife not to be alarmed when she read of a VC attack on his base. He then proceeded to ease her mind with the details. Yet the incident never reached the American press.

These are just a few of the examples that this group of Lincoln wives relate. How many more countless instances could Vietnamese war wives all over the country relate—those that never reach the public.

But these are not bitter women; not in the least. Their general feeling was summed up in one statement—"I miss my husband terribly, but I can't help feeling very proud that he's there." These ladies feel a real responsibility to express this pride and display to the nation that draft card burners and "Get out of Vietnam" demonstrators are just a well-voiced minority. They are trying to equip the majority with a "silent" voice of much more impact by selling bumper stickers sponsored by the Pershing Rifles Alumni that read "I'm Proud To Be an American."

Still, the Vietnam Wives haven't sought out each other to match complaints but to exchange the general impressions, the first hand understanding, and the funny

of the town

There are congratulations to be offered this morning. They are extended to Mrs. Dorothy Lessenhop, librarian of the State Library Commission, and sharing the honors in a small way is the city of Lincoln.

You may remember that just a few years ago a Book Fair was held in Lincoln. It attracted authors from all sections of the country and, according to all who participated, the Book Fair was a success.

One of the authors who attended was Florence Loughlin whose book for children, "The Little Left-over Witch," had just been published. We have just learned that the author will have another book published this month—it is a mystery story for children, and it has the fascinating title of "The Seventh Cousin." There are two reasons why "The Seventh Cousin" should be a best-seller in this locale. The predominant reason is Mrs. Lessenhop—The book is dedicated to her. To Lincoln goes the honor of having been chosen as the setting for the story.

A look at the fun on the calendar tells us that the Lancaster County Medical Auxiliary will be having its annual—and traditional—dinner dance on Saturday evening, March 12.

The party is to be held at the Lincoln Country Club, and planning the affair is a committee composed of Dr. and Mrs. George Lewis, Jr., chairmen; Dr. and Mrs. Keith Schenck, Dr. and Mrs. E. D. Zeman and Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Maness.

Saturday, March 12, will be a busy day in Valentine, too. It seems that there is to be a luncheon and a "The New Way To Spell Spring" fashion show at Valentine's St. Christopher's Inn. We understand that there are to be 18 attractive models—and a special guest, Mrs. Norbert (Nobby) for short) Tiemann.

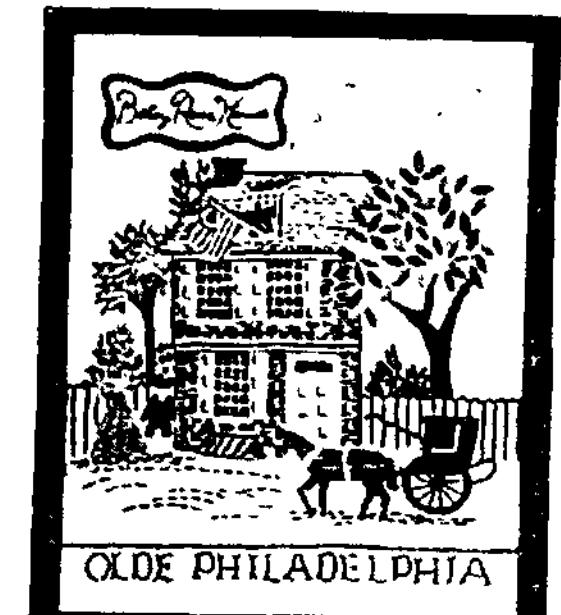

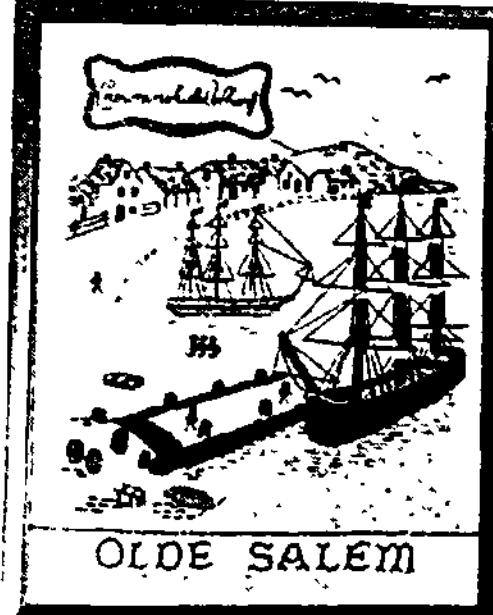

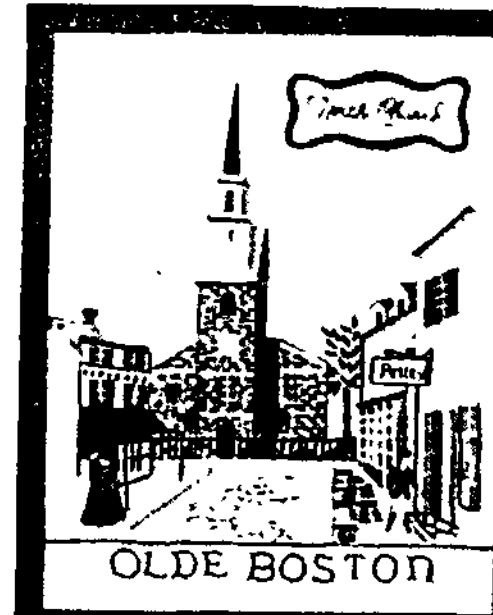

To refresh a few memories, Mrs. Tiemann is the former Lorna Lou Bornholdt of Wausa—a graduate of the University of Nebraska, where she is a member of Chi Omega sorority, and served as a countess in the Court of Ak-Sar-Ben.

We think you also may be interested in the fact that the chairman for the luncheon and fashion show is Mrs. Glen Buck, Jr. (Linda Kimmel—Kappa Alpha Theta at Nebraska.)

There was a fashion show in Madison, Wis., recently, and how a man by the name of Frank Ryan (with the UPI bureau in Madison) happened to be on hand still is a bit of a mystery. But there he was, and we find his story a bit on the hilarious side. We hope you will, also.

All in all, it was a good day to take in my first fashion show.

Plumbers were meeting in the state capitol to plug leaks in their license law, but the usually frenetic activity of government turned languid as the thermometer crept into the low 50s.

Like a siren call, the perfumed invitation beckoned me to Les Magnifiques, a fashion show with fabrics by Bousac de Paris.

Four chic Parisian models stared at me from the invitation. They had exotic names like Michele, Carline, Chantal and Annie (pronounced 'Ah'nie'). I figured they'd be disappointed if I didn't go.

suburban areas

To all those suburban ladies who along with a few of us thought that spring was on its way, the poem is respectfully dedicated:

Spring has sprung?

The grass is riz?

Then where did this dern snow come from?

COTNER TERRACE

Again today the activity in suburbia is mostly in the moving category. But several residents have been doing some interesting social things.

Mrs. Eldon Henninger wanted to have a small luncheon Thursday afternoon for several of her feminine friends, but like many suburban plans this one went astray. What started out as a neighborhood luncheon turned out to be a surprise birthday party for Mrs. Henninger herself!

Her guests — Mrs. James McVicker, Mrs. William Wood, Mrs. Wayne Wickenamp, Mrs. Fred Hill, and Mrs. Don Kelly — all appeared with a birthday cake, gifts, and anniversary greetings.

Entertaining house guests last weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Pendleton and family. The Lincoln residents welcomed Mr. Pendleton's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Simonsen of Quimby, Iowa.

MEADOW LANE

As the moving list grows we must include Mr. and Mrs. Ray K. Stephens who are now residing at 1240 Scenic Lane. The Stephens family which includes youngsters, Monte and Mitchell, has returned to its old neighborhood. Last July the Stephens had thoughts of departing from Lincoln, but fortune pulled them back and they are renewing old acquaintances again.

Other out-of-towners are Mr. and Mrs. Larry Hoier who made the 60 mile move from Millard to Lincoln on Saturday. Like many other movers today, this is the first male is lured by perfumed invitation

My tie was wrinkled, my shoes needed heels, but I had a new haircut. Let the plumbers wait.

It was a world of burnt orange flourish, white embossed pique', tosses of pink clover and peau de soie (whatever they are?).

After I arrived, I thought of the plumbers. They need me.

Why are all these women staring at me?

Where are the men?

I remembered how much I like John Wayne movies. I thought of the days when I played football and basketball. I recalled the rough Green Bay Packers, the Milwaukee Braves. I wished I'd never got that haircut. I gotta get outta here.

The models flowed along the runway, back and forth and staring straight ahead.

"All the Parisian girls wear their skirts three inches above the knee," whispered a gallic voice from the public address system. "Thees ees the fashion there."

I forced myself to stay a little longer.

Besides, it would make too big a commotion if I left by the fire exit.

I wonder how they change clothes so fast. Should I mention it to my wife?

Are the girls walking funny, or is it the angle of view from my seat in the corner?

"A misty mix of pale peach, lemon and grey cotinga cut to kicky city ways," said the voice. I felt like I wanted an ice cream soda.

"Yo ho ho and a ruffle of fun. Bell-bottom lounging pyjamas that never saw the sea." A model, I think it was Altine, appeared in a red costume that looked like a flowered sailor suit without the collar. All the women started clapping. If Moses wore anything like that, it's easy to see how he parted the Red Sea, I thought.

"A nocturnal flowering of orange and gold on inky black," came the voice. I thought of Hemingway's plithy rose and wondered what a newspaper editor would do with that phrase... orange and gold flowers on black cloth.

Finally, the French story-book bride, "romantic and fragile." Before the applause died out, I made my escape.

DEAR "MATURE": There's something wrong with YOU, if you can't see what is wrong with HIM. He is old enough to know WHY the parents of a 15-year-old girl do not want her going with a 23-year-old man. American auto makers assembled 5,161,724 passenger cars in the first half of 1965. It was the first time any six-month period had exceeded 5 million.

Quasars apparently are the oldest and most distant objects in the universe.

More than 300,000 workers will retire this year at 65 or older.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a secret code designed to tell out your fortune. Copy the letters in your first name. If no letters or letters in your name are not in the code, then add them. The result is your key number. Most of the code letters are repeated, so add as many of your key numbers left to the right as you can. Then add the numbers together across the other letters given and the result is your fortune.

Peru Will Set NAIA Mark

RECORD FOR APPEARANCES

Peru — When Peru State College takes the floor in the NAIA tournament next week in Kansas City, Mo., they will establish a new participation record of 13 appearances in the 29-year history of the tournament.

Hamline University of St. Paul, Minn., and Indiana State College have been tied with Peru State at 12 appearances, but neither of these teams will compete this year.

Coach Jack McIntire's Peru State Bobcats won their way to the tourney with two victories in three games over Doane College this week.

McIntire has named a 10-man squad for the Kansas City trip. The list includes Mike Harmon, Wood River, Ill.; Bill Witty, Syracuse; Wayne Heine, East Alton, Ill.; Bob Lovejoy, Red Oak, Iowa; Ron Snodgrass, Seward, Seward; Bill Sanders, O'Fallon, Ill.; Dean Cain, Thurman, Iowa; Bill Rinne, Burchard; Jack Rinne, Burchard; Leon Portney, Dawson.

Peru's 13th visit to the tourney will represent McIntire's seventh time in the cage classic. McIntire-coached teams participated in 1961, 1962, and 1963, and the Peru State coach played in three tournaments — 1933, 1939, and 1940. The 1939 squad reached the semi-finals for the best performance by any Peru State NAIA tourney team.

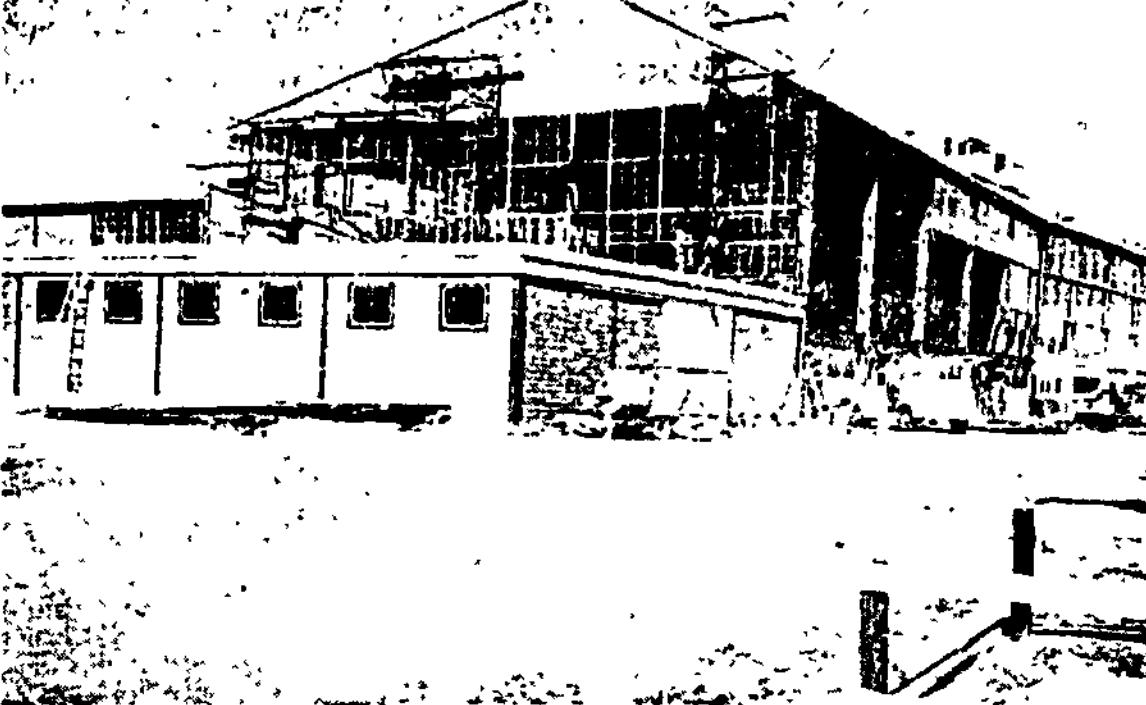

McIntire-coached tourney teams have won two games and dropped three. The 1961 club gained an opening-round 72-65 victory over fourth-seeded Oglethorpe (Ga.) Col-

NCC Mat Meet At Wayne Today

GETTING READY . . . Work is nearing completion on improvements at Fonner Park where Nebraska racing season opens March 29.

FONNER IMPROVEMENTS NEARLY DONE

Grand Island — Improvements totaling $300,000 are nearing completion at Fonner Park, the racing fan, horsemen, and

The building program is designed to give comfort, convenience, and enjoyment to the racing fan, horsemen, and jockeys, alike. These improvements should make Fonner Park the finest five-furlong oval between Chicago and the West Coast.

The work has moved along so well that it has reached the point that all that remains is hanging doors, glazing windows, and cleaning up.

The racing fan will enjoy an added 100 feet of enclosed and heated grandstand to the south of the former structure. This extension will house some 1,500 more seats, bringing the seating capacity of Fonner Park to 4,000.

Below and behind this additional seating will be a large concourse. This area will contain closed circuit television, which should do a great deal to handle the overflow crowds on Saturdays.

Extending on another 50 feet south of the new grandstand will be a building, housing a new paddock, jockey's quarters, general offices, and the doctor's office.

Patrons on the lower level of the grandstand will be able to view the horses in the paddock without leaving the building.

Bookie Ring Raided

Five Arrested

Omaha (UPI) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced here Friday that simultaneous raids by the FBI, the Omaha Police Department vice squad and the Sarpy County sheriff's office resulted in the arrest of five men charged with operating a large-scale bookmaking ring in the area.

Arrested by the FBI in Omaha was Lloyd Abbott, 52, Lake Manawa, Iowa.

Also arrested in a 13th St. smoke shop in Omaha by the Omaha Police Department were Tony Miloni, 53, and Lawrence Anthony Scavio, 64, both of Omaha. The Sarpy County sheriff's office arrested Sam S. Nocita, 50, and Jack P. LaFeria, 43, also of Omaha, in connection with the case.

4 Held Tax Stamps

All, with the exception of Scavio, are holders of federal wagering tax stamps.

The bookmaking activities were centered in Omaha, Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Sarpy County, Neb.

Taken in each arrest were numerous betting slips and other wagering material.

The FBI said the bookmaking operation is believed to be one of the largest of its kind in the Omaha area and has been under a coordinated investigation by the FBI, Sarpy County sheriff's office and the Omaha vice squad for several weeks.

Closed Interstate Lane At Overflow Bridge Reopens

Ashland (UPI) — Traffic was moving normally over all four lanes of the Interstate Highway near here Friday after repair work was completed on approaches to a westbound overflow bridge.

The westbound lane had been closed at the bridge for two weeks. The eastbound lane was also closed, but has been open for more than a week.

The bridge approaches were damaged last month by rampaging floodwaters from the Platte River.

The State Highway Department in Lincoln said normal traffic was resumed about 10 a.m.

Stock Prices Dip After Early Climb

New York (UPI) — The stock market Friday made a couple of futile attempts to continue its strong technical rally of Thursday but they came to nought and the list ended with another loss. Trading was active.

Volume was 9.05 million shares compared with 9.92 million Thursday.

The closely-watched Dow Jones' industrial average ended with a loss of 4.01 at 922.34, having wiped out a gain of 3.23 it made in the first half hour.

Many of the high flyers in aerospace, electronics, airlines, office equipments and other fields that promise quick growth were up to sizable gains at the start but the bloom was off the rose by the end of the first hour. What gains were held on average were pretty well canceled by noon.

Then the market headed lower until a recovery drive brought it back to virtually an even keel a half hour before the market close.

At this point a renewed gust of selling, accompanied by a late tickler tape, knocked prices down to their lowest levels of the day.

Analysts saw it merely as a trading market where pre-weekend profit taking and evening-up put the clampdown on a possibly rally.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 1.1 to 149.2 with individual gains of 2.1, rails off 1.3 and utilities 1.0.

1,422 issues traded, 302 rose and 671 fell. New highs for 1964-65 total 38 and new lows 72.

Nine of the 15 most active stocks declined and six advanced.

Prices were irregularly lower on the New York Stock Exchange. Volume was 14.4 million shares compared with 13.8 million Thursday.

Corporate bonds continued to decline.

U.S. Treasury bonds were stronger.
